

GBTEC and Lean-BPM join forces to drive Business Process Management in North America

GBTEC and Lean-BPM announce a new partnership to promote Business Process Management in North America.

Lean-BPM's deep knowledge and experience in the areas of business intelligence, analytics, process control, business process management, and process modeling are a perfect fit with GBTEC's comprehensive BPM suite, BIC Platform. Together, the two experts will provide businesses with a powerful end-to-end BPM solution and services that integrate process modeling, automation, and optimization.

We are pleased to announce our recent partnership with Lean-BPM, a renowned consulting company specializing in the recommendation and implementation of BPM products and services.

The collaboration between GBTEC and Lean-BPM is an important step in helping organizations in North America to achieve their process improvement goals. By joining forces, GBTEC and Lean-BPM are combining their extensive expertise, industry knowledge, and cutting-edge technologies to provide customers with tailored solutions that deliver tangible results.

Stephen Willoughby, President & Principal Consultant at Lean-BPM, says: "With our new partnership with GBTEC we have added a unified platform that provides us with end-to-end visibility, transparency, and control over our processes. This allows us to help our customers to optimize their operations and provide more clarity in the decision-making process."

Both GBTEC and Lean-BPM share a commitment to innovation and delivering solutions and services that meet the evolving needs of modern businesses. With this partnership, the two companies aim to combine their strengths to deliver unparalleled value to customers and drive digital transformation across industries.
